

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An application is provided for managing files. Information about a file system is mapped to a comparison file. A working version is made from the file system. The application identify one or more operations were performed on the working version. The 5 identified operations are recreated on the file system during a synchronization operation.